Earthquake and Storm [illegible]

SAN DIEGO, Nov. 15.—A severe shock of earthquake was felt here at 2.32 P. M. shaking things lively, lasting from thirty to forty seconds. Vibrations were from west to east.

ANAHEIM, Nov. 15. A light shock of earthquake occurred this evening at 2.15 with an undulating motion, but no noise. No damage done.

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 15—There were showers and light rain on Saturday night and yesterday. Grass is growing finely and the farming prospect is good.

At about thirty six minutes past 2 o'clock this afternoon a smart shock of earthquake lasting for six seconds was felt here and simultaneously in all places in the interior with which we have communication by telegraph. The shock did no damage whatever.

SAN BERNARDINO, Nov 15—The most distinct earthquake of the season visited us at 2.38 P M. Vibrations were north and south with the undulating motion, accompanied with a rumbling noise. No damage reported to buildings.

Rain commenced Saturday and it is still raining, with no prospects of clearing up. No wind.

ARIZONA.

SOLA, Nov. 15.—The severest shock of earthquake ever experienced here occurred this afternoon at 2.30, lasting 4 seconds, shaking chimneys and cracking adobe walls badly. Three or four small shocks succeeded the shock at intervals of 15 or 20 minutes.

A severe sand storm has prevailed on the [illegible] since yesterday morning.

WICKENBURG WELLS, Nov 15—A slight shock of earthquake of five seconds duration was experienced here at 2.41 this afternoon.

TUCSON, Nov 15.—News received yesterday leaves no doubt but that the revolutionary party in Sonora had a successful fight near Alamos last week, in which six government troops were killed, a number wounded and some taken prisoners. They also captured between 400 and 500 prisoners and about 800 head of cattle. Sympathizers of the revolutionists are freely rejoicing.

Savage Proceedings in a Court of Justice

SALEM, Nov 15.—In the county court to-day during the examination of Watkins for adultery, Whiteman, the prosecuting witness in the case was testifying when Watkins drew a revolver and fired at Whiteman, missing him, the ball striking a man, a painter by trade, named D D Orton, formerly of Portland, in the left side of the head near the temple, causing a wound from which Orton will probably die. Watkins is the man who was outrageously mutilated by Whiteman for alleged intimacy with his (Whiteman's) wife and for which Whiteman was sentenced to the penitentiary for one year. Watkins was immediately arrested. Three shots were fired, one entering Orton's face at one side and passed entirely through his head.

ANCIENT AMERICA.

RUINS OF CITIES FLOURISHING HERE A THOUSAND YEARS AGO—WORK OF THE HAYDEN SURVEY—PREHISTORIC FARMING IN THE UNITED STATES.

[From the N Y Herald]

SAN JUAN RIVER, Southeastern Utah, Aug 3, 1875.—The limits of the section of the country abounding in prehistoric remains seems to be well defined, for when the first ruined building is observed many more are found in the immediate vicinity and so through the whole country occupying the contiguous portions of Colorado, Utah, Arizona and New Mexico will be found scattered more or less thickly, these evidences of a former greatness, until finally converging from the barren waste the last vestige has been passed.

After we had examined the first important ruin at Aztec Springs we moved our camp in a western direction 25 miles to the banks of a dry arroyo or flood-wash called in the euphonious Ute Indian tongue the Hovenweep, and by Capt. Moss and Mr W H Jackson last summer, and signifying [illegible]

DESERTED CANYON

Further down the McElmo stands a group of various sorts of ruins, the most marked being known as Battle Rock. This is a great boulder of debris rock which has fallen partly down from its original position on the north side of which is a straight fortification wall in a state of good preservation. Below this was the walls of a tower some 15 feet in diameter plainly showing the ends of cedar beams still around the circumference of it, but above the ground, where the floor of the second story had been laid. On the south side of Battle Rock lay the remnants of several walls and on the very top of the highest point of rock, several hundred feet above, were other walls still standing, showing clearly from the general character that the place had been one of defense. Much broken pottery was scattered around and several arrow heads were picked up around it. As [illegible] became visible on either side partly built in the rocks far above us. One tower was remarkable for its situation high above all around it. It stood on a square rock [illegible] the hills [illegible] walls [illegible] brown [illegible] the sandstone [illegible]

OTHER PICTURESQUE RUINS

Dozens of different ruins might be mentioned and described, but for illustration a few of the most characteristic will be cited.

Just north of our camp near by a quarter of a mile distant stood a collection of the most complicated and extended ruins we had yet seen. The general shape of the group was that [illegible], running from the north around through the west to the south of where they commenced. The entire length was some [illegible] feet. In the erection of their durable structures no definite plan seemed to have been followed by the architects although, for all we can tell they may have had a distinct purpose in every particular in design. The outer walls of the fortress (for everything indicated that it had been used as such) stood on a solid layer of rock or series of boulders 100 feet above the creek, while the walls of the interior of the arc stood on the level ground below, thus forming two successive stories to the building, the higher of which was undoubtedly approached from the top of the lower by means of ladders. The building stone was all roughly cut or trimmed into rectangular and cubical blocks and plastered together with the hands of the workmen. It is a matter of uncertainty that in all or most of their house building these people employed no masons or builder's tools, for the prints of the fingers, knuckles, nails and whole hands are distinctly impressed in the mud which is now as hard as the rocks which it joins together. The very veins and finest lines of the skin of the fingers is visible everywhere on the edges of the mortar. We cannot imagine the amount of labor in cutting stone, carrying it from the hillsides and building it into thousands of cubic feet of wall that is represented in one such production of those ancient people. Perhaps thousands of hands were employed for many years although many things suggest the idea of rapidity in the erection of such strongholds.

A REMARKABLE SKELETON

Selecting two chambers among the others in the building, we had them cleared of the rubbish which had been deposited for centuries, aided by small animals, the wind and the wearing away of rocks and mortar. This reached to a depth of three and a half feet, but we discovered nothing on the floor of the apartment save fragments of decomposed cedar and several pieces of charcoal and other indications of fire. Everything had been destroyed thus or else had long since been carried away by wandering tribes of Indians or exploring whites. In the neighborhood we discovered several other less important walls and cave houses which, unlike those of the Mancos Canon, invariably built on the west side to get the morning sun, appeared here on either side indiscriminately. Six or eight miles above the great ruin a skeleton was found in the very bank of the wash. The skull and part of the body protruded through the earth and so attracted attention. The body had been placed in a half recumbent attitude scarcely four feet below the surface which was now covered with sage brush indicating a growth of more than a hundred years. The skull was dug out perfectly whole, but fell to pieces when it was dropped on the ground. It showed a full, high intellectual forehead and undoubtedly belonged to the dolicocephalic or long headed division. The head was massive and unusually long, the jaws containing two regular sets of very large and strong teeth, which still were perfectly preserved. The bridge of the nose was very prominent and denoted a very large nasal organ. We entertained no doubt that these were the remains of one of the ancient inhabitants entirely distinct from any of the representatives of the genuine Indian tribes of to-day. More developments may serve to solve the problem.

Passing down the Hovenweep, we stopped to investigate many old buildings among the cliffs and rocks; one of which stood on a cubical stone thirty odd feet each way. There were no means of getting up to where the walls stood around the edge except by the aid of a ladder or by creeping up the perpendicular face by the assistance of shallow, weathered worn hollows niched in the rocks. In the [illegible] and this we observed situated on a high bluff beneath which were etchings cut in the overhanging cliff, and pictorial inscriptions which were undoubtedly produced by the original builders of the surrounding dwellings. Above this, on the highest point of the mesa we picked up a number of stone implements and found an extensive graveyard marked off into squares of about six feet by stones set regularly into the soil on edge. On opening two of these nothing was revealed but a quantity of charcoal and some white dust. From a foot and a half to two feet down the solid bed rock appeared so that it [was] impossible for anything to have been buried there. The only conclusion at which we could arrive, then, was that this particular community practiced cremation either as a portion of their religion or because of the urgency of the times when their prosecutors were driving them out of their country. We noticed particularly some large circular mounds which perhaps marked the resting place of the ashes of some prominent personages.

Let us go back to the history of our country or rather refer to the

PREHISTORIC OCCUPANTS OF THE PAST

Some time about the sixth or seventh century A. D. a race of people appeared on the Western Continent called the Toltecs. Whether they were autochthons springing from the soil or whether they migrated to the country from another is not settled and is a matter of much conjecture but the latter supposition seems the most probable, for their sudden appearance can be accounted for in no other way. They may have come over from Asia and penetrated southward to Central America, for their manners, customs and modes of living, so far as we can ascertain resembled closely those of the Orientals. They were an industrious, harmless, peaceful people, employing to a certain extent the fine arts, and in some parts of Central America mighty edifices of stone carved and polished and built in fantastic shapes, representing huge serpents and imaginary beasts still remain to bear evidence of the advancement of the times and the proficiency of the architects.

ABOUT THE TWELFTH CENTURY

a race of people known as the Aztec, fierce, barbarous and uncultured, came down from the northward and conquered and subjugated the Toltec race. For a time they ruled and made slaves of the vanquished people but the Aztecs seem to have been a tribe that sprung up suddenly and as quickly disappeared, for we lose all trace of them after they are consigned into oblivion. Not so however, the Toltecs. Until lately there seemed to be a wide gap in time between these ancient races and the Indian race of to-day. The connecting link seems to be the modern Moquis, who most undoubtedly descended from the builders of the ancient ruins we are now investigating, and they in their turn were in all probability remnants of the subjugated Toltec races escaped from bondage. The builders of these ruins seem to have come from the South, and built northward and were then driven back, step by step, for generally the lowermost ruins are the most perfectly preserved and evidently the most recent, being more complicated as their creators retired southward. For a time this scattered people seem to have regained their freedom, prospered and multiplied, spreading their towns and secreted [illegible] throughout most of all the canyons of the tributaries of the San Juan, thence west as far as the Colorado river. But presently another foe as relentless and persecuting as the Aztecs appeared on the scene. These were the ancient Ute Indians who were a strong, bloody tribe inhabiting a section of country north of the San Juan. We have this fact [illegible] in the traditions both of the present Utes [illegible] and they help to establish truths which [illegible] indisputable. All the [illegible] at the present day [illegible] through this country that these ruins are 'Moquitch' remains. We made a point to ask the question whenever we had an opportunity and invariably received the same reply. Showing a party of Utes one day a collection of pottery we had gathered we inquired of them what it was. The pottery, and were [illegible] Moquitch, with a [illegible] As we were digging in one of the old graves at another [illegible] passed by who informed us that it was a Moquitch cache. We have been repeatedly told that the walls of houses in the vicinity were those of "Moquitch" houses and it is certain that this identifies them among the Navajos and Pah-Utes as well as the Aztecs—that the Moqui tribe are the descendants of all this country many, many years ago beyond the recollection of their grandfathers. The traditions, which have been handed from one generation to the next for centuries, give accounts of war with this race long ago in which the Moquis were driven from the country. We know that between three and four centuries ago the seven Moqui towns occupied their present positions on the mesas of Arizona and we therefore conclude that these ruins possess a still greater antiquity. It is quite certain that the present Moqui towns were not built until after the tribe had been driven south and took their last stand there, where they have since remained undisturbed for many hundreds of years. In regard to the antiquity of the ruins a great diversity of opinion exists. Some writers give them an antiquity

[illegible] A THOUSAND YEARS

while others set them down as being not far from 400. It is more probable however that they have been standing, as near as it is possible to conjecture from the external evidences which they present, for a time in the neighborhood of 500 or 600 years.

THE WRECKED STEAMER

INQUEST ON THE DEAD BODIES PICKED UP

From proof sheets furnished by Mr Davis, foreman of the Standard office we learn that an inquest was begun at Victoria on Friday of last week, on three of the bodies of persons recovered from the wreck of the ill fated Pacific. The bodies recovered were identified as those of Mrs Keller, of San Francisco, G T Vining, of Puyallup W T, and a man supposed to have been a seaman whose name is not known.

The inquest was held before Hon A F Pemberton with the following gentlemen as jurors: Eugene Clark, John R Adams, Robert Plummer, James Pell, Alexander Wilson and Chas F Seymour. Mr Pell was chosen foreman. The coroner decided to inquire into the cause of the death of each of the three persons jointly.

The following evidence was adduced:

James F Fox sworn—I am chief engineer on board the steamer Gussie Telfair. I saw those three bodies picked out of the water in the vicinity of Neah Bay seven miles east of Cape Flattery; the body of the woman has been identified as that of Mrs Keller of San Francisco; the man named G T Vining is from Steilacoom W T; in the pocketbook produced was written G T Vining; the same name was written on several other papers in his possession; the purser and myself took them off his person; amongst other things taken from his person is a gold watch and chain number 5 621, made by Robert Roscow, which had stopped at the hour 9.30; we found also a Masonic emblem and a bill of lading for 264 bales of hops, a blank form of insurance policy, a purse containing $20 in gold, $5 10 U S currency, and $0 60 in ten cent pieces, one gold ring, also a pocket revolver, (articles produced.)

To the jury—We went out about 15 or 16 miles southward of Cape Flattery, did not see any wreck [illegible] neighborhood; the bodies were [illegible] Tuesday morning, have been [illegible] tossing up and down the straits; in my opinion the wreck took place from five to seven miles below Cape Flattery; the bulk of the wreckage we found off Pillar Point, W T, and found no signs of wreckage below; we also took these three rings (produced) from the woman's finger, whose name I believe to be Mrs Keller; one of the rings is engraved in the inside with the letters F & H; the body was dressed as it is now; she had a pocket handkerchief in her dress pocket with the letter "L" marked in one corner (handkerchief produced). On the person of the other man (name unknown) was found only a Catholic prayer book (book produced). I was present during the search of all the bodies found.

James McCarthy sworn—Don't know either of the bodies of the men recovered by name, but saw the youngest man in Seattle on board of the steamship Pacific, and believe he was one of the hands on board of the vessel; don't know his name.

J H Carney sworn—Am purser on the steamship Gussie Telfair; my evidence will be the same as that given by Mr Fox. I took charge of the valuables found on the bodies; know the bodies came from the steamer Pacific by the life preservers found on them; I was not acquainted with Mr Vining, knew him to be a trader, and had a store at a place called Puyallup, Tacoma; knew he belonged to a Masonic lodge at that place.

Benj Haley sworn—Have known Mr Vining for upwards of five years; was at the deceased's house about a month ago; deceased told me then he intended to go to San Francisco when all his hops were shipped; I recognized the body this morning when I came in; deceased leaves a family at Puyallup, Tacoma.

THE BODY OF MRS KELLER

Mrs Sarah Duck sworn—I identify the body of the woman to be that of Mrs Keller, San Francisco; the deceased (Lizzie Keller) was spending the afternoon at my house the day before she left on the Pacific; she had a child with her aged seven months; the deceased with her husband and child left on Thursday, the 4th, on board the Pacific for San Francisco. I recognize the ring produced, a hair ring; she called it an [illegible] it. I looked at it and she asked me if I had ever seen any other like it.

A SURVIVOR'S EVIDENCE

The testimony of Henry F Jelley, omitting that part of it which was given in his statement when first rescued, showed that in the judgment of the witness the Pacific was not in sea going trim and he says:—On going out of the harbor I made the remark that if our ship kept this list we were in danger. We were told repeatedly to trim ship. By list I mean when the vessel leans over to one side; as we were about four or five miles out of the harbor they commenced to put water into the boats to keep the vessel steady. The first water was put in the boat on the port side; the boat was swung in on the davits, then vessel was listing to the starboard, when they put the water in the boat. She kept steady for a while and then listed over to the port side. Saw one of the officers pull the plug out of the boat on the port side to let the water run out and put the hose in the boats on the opposite side, one forward of the paddle box and one abaft; this kept the vessel even for a while. It is my opinion this changing of water was all along [illegible] went to bed on the cabin floor at about seven o'clock; a number of passengers were sitting around the cabin table, the rest had gone to their berths; thought I lay down for about an hour. I was aroused by a shock and a crash which sounded as if a log was shoved through the starboard side, the side I was sleeping on; my first impression was that the anchor had fallen down; partly dressed myself and went on deck; vessel did not seem to list over nor tremble; heard the bell ring, I think to stop the engines; when I reached the deck I found the [illegible] all right, only struck on the [illegible] Went back to the cabin and noticed the vessel careen over and heard the water rushing in [illegible] forward; went on deck and saw the captain and purser; tried to get purser to ask the captain which one of the boats he would take charge of; did not hear the answer. I asked if any lifeboats were on hand; told me they were in the wheel house; went to the wheel house and [illegible] passenger [illegible] who asked me if I knew the course to land in, remarking that if [illegible] he could steer the ship.

[illegible]

the man was afterwards [illegible] in the aft [illegible] pretty sure the engine was working [illegible] and no person at the wheel [illegible] of the wheelhouse and let the [illegible] off; left the house, then [illegible] asked [illegible] which was the best boat to which to [illegible] I think I heard the captain say, "If the passengers don't let us cut the ropes it'll leave them without a crew." I know the words were spoken, but by whom I am not sure. I stood alongside the boat forward of the paddle box; one of the davit falls broke and had to get new block and tackle to right it; [illegible] of the ladies were placed in the boat; heard a lady passenger say there was some water in it; the first engineer appeared to have charge and ordered all the men to get out; some got out; one of the crew threw one of the passengers out on the deck; in the bow I saw a number of the cabin waiters. I asked why they were allowed in; they said they were there to take charge of the ladies. Finally the ship settled down so much so that the boat floated on its davit and I was cut loose.

BROKE IN TWO AND WENT DOWN

I think the engine broke through the ship before the vessel disappeared. The pilot house then floated over towards the boat; there were five of us on it when the vessel went down; it left the water smooth all around and I saw hundreds of people struggling in the water; when the pilot house came near enough I and another man stepped on it; the other three remained on the boat, which was the last I saw of them; heard before we left the ship that two boats had got off; am almost sure one of the life boats full of passengers went down with the ship; was not down with the steerage passengers; saw none of the cargo except the horses; could not say whether the captain was dressed or not; my impression is that it was a good hour from the time I heard the crash till the vessel went down; there did not seem to be any discipline on board at the time; did not see any of the officers during the struggle save the first engineer, who appeared to be doing what he could; should say the lights I saw would be about 100 yards off and appeared like plain lights—like those from a cabin window; my honest conviction is that the ship was not fit to go to sea, and remarked to a fellow passenger that there was one chance out of ten if we would get to San Francisco without an accident; did not see any person landed at Sooke.

ADJOURNMENT

Here the inquiry was adjourned until Tuesday to enable the jury to hear the evidence of the quartermaster who was saved, and that of others whom the jury thought would give information respecting the manner in which the boats were fastened to the ship.

During the investigation the room was crowded with persons. The bodies of the dead lay decently covered in the same position in which they were picked up by the officers and crew of the steamship Gussie Telfair.

Mr Jelley, the chief witness, who is still weak, was seated in a chair and seemed to be recovering from his very severe sufferings.

THE GOVERNMENT OFFER THE INDIANS A REWARD

The Fantome left Victoria Saturday morning, for the scene of the late disaster. Capt Warren, an experienced mariner on the west coast, has been engaged as Indian interpreter and pilot. Capt Long, of the Fantome, has been authorized by the local government to offer to the Indians along the coast a reward of $100 for each person rescued alive belonging to the wrecked Pacific and for each dead body picked up a reward of $20. This well advised step has been decided upon in order to stimulate the Indians to make search for the victims of the recent lamentable occurrence.

LATEST NEWS FROM THE WRECK.

Second Cruise of the Wolcott—Results

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

PORT TOWNSEND, Nov 15.—The revenue cutter Wolcott arrived this afternoon from her second cruise in search of the bodies of the victims of the late disaster. She followed the shore line of the south side of the straits, commencing at Point Wilson, searching every floating object, and landing boats at different places where there was a probability of drift lodging and requesting the residents and light house tenders all along the route to keep a good lookout and report anything that might be of interest. A number of Indian canoes were overhauled above Port Angelos who reported that a [illegible] writing pertaining to the wreck had been picked up at Elwah, but on arriving at that place the surf ran high and it was impossible to land a boat, neither would any canoes come off from shore, although they were repeatedly hailed. Light portions of the wreck were found on the south shore as far west as Fresh Water Bay, then all indications disappeared, and Captain Harwood on Sunday morning headed the cutter for the Vancouver shore, around Sooke and Becher Bay. The water was covered with floating kelp and pieces of the wreck. About noon a body was discovered with a life preserver around it. On getting it aboard, it proved to be that of a man, about 40 years of age, about five feet six inches high, black hair and beard, and dressed in a dark tweed suit. On his body was found an American silver watch and in a body belt $97 in coin and notes. From his diary and a steamer ticket his name was discovered to be D C McIntyre. He had been up on the Fraser river since September last and had arrived in Victoria just previous to the sailing of the Pacific. A receipt for poll tax paid in Jefferson district, Sutter county, California, was also found, and it appeared that he had resided at Marysville, California for some time. He came there direct from the East and had been employed by Mr Rheuben Hobbs, and it is probable that some of his friends or relatives may reside at Marysville. His body was taken to Port Townsend, and will be buried. Any further information respecting him or his effects will cheerfully be given by addressing Collector H A Webster or Capt. Harwood.

The search was continued around Sooke, Becher bay and Race Rocks, but nothing else of importance was discovered.

The steamer Los Angeles was spoken Sunday afternoon but reported seeing only some light portions of the wreck on her way up the Straits.

Nothing was left undone by Capt Harwood that would render the search effective and complete and to convey to the friends of the victims news of their sad fate.

Many telegrams were received from different parts of the coast containing descriptions of persons who had sailed on the Pacific, but there is little hope of any further discoveries of living or dead victims of the sad calamity.

THE TERRITORIES

Large numbers of beef cattle are shipped every week from Olympia to supply the Victoria market.

Gov Ferry of Washington has proclaimed Thursday Nov 25th as a day of thanksgiving according to the usual custom.

Pope & Talbot of Port Gamble mills, have purchased the stern wheel steamer Constance, 114 tons, in San Francisco, for $10,000.

Col Larrabee of Seattle has lately bought the celebrated Bushy farm in Crescent harbor, Whidby Island, and proposes to make a model farm of it.

There are at present twelve prisoners confined in Kitsap county (W T) jail, of which five belong to that county, five territorial, one to Jefferson county and one to King county.

The Olympia Courier says: A farmer whose name we could not ascertain, residing in the Kittitass valley, started through the Natchez pass shortly after the fall rains began with 200 mutton sheep in charge. After getting this side of the summit with them he met a man who informed him that all the little streams were full to the brim and that it was impossible for him to get through. The farmer knew he could not drive them back the way he came on account of the high waters, so he abandoned them to the storms, wild beasts or starvation and rode toward home as fast as he could. We imagine the wolves and cougars have provided material for a woollen factory long ere this.

LETTER FROM OLYMPIA

OLYMPIA, Nov 12 1875.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN:

This being the last day of the session the solons are kept busy in working their pet bills up to a final passage and making preparations to vacate the seats retained by them during the past forty days. As the members have already received their pay, they begin to feel indifferent as to the result of any measures but those in which they are directly interested.

On approaching the capitol this morning I was rather surprised to see the flag flying with the Union down and being anxious to know the reason of this unusual sign of distress I hurried to the house and learned that it had only been hoisted in that way in anticipation of the number of bills about to be slaughtered, and verily the prognostication proved true.

From the large quantity of business rushed through and also from late adjournments I was unable to forward a report by mail last evening and trust that I may be pardoned if I take up a little more space than usual. One of the most remarkable bills of the session was introduced yesterday by Mr Hughes of King declaring intoxication a misdemeanor, and making it applicable to Indians and foreigners. The crime to be punishable by a fine of not less than $5 nor more than $25 and office-holders double. The bill passed the house without trouble, but the title could not be agreed to and it perished accordingly. During the evening session the honorable gentleman had the courage (and I give him credit for it), to introduce another bill of the same description which was referred to the committee on education. That committee however, failed to report on the bill previous to adjournment and it was consequently lost.

INSANE ASYLUM

During the morning session of Thursday the attention of the Council was directed to C B 6, an act to amend an act approved January 1 1867 relative to the care and keeping of insane persons. Mr Pickering appealed to the feelings of the members in forcible and most emphatic language in favor of the unfortunate insane, asking to have the present corrupt system wiped out of existence, so that the record of the Territory, as regards the keeping of insane persons, may not be tarnished in the eyes of a charitable public. Mr Bland followed in the same strain, stigmatizing the system as corrupt in every particular and disgraceful to the Territory at large. He had known the present contractor (Mr Harmon) for many years, and knew him to be a humane man and not one likely to abuse the trust reposed in him, but the system of giving the care and keeping of insane persons into the hands of the lowest bidder was what he was opposed to, and against which he raised his voice. Petitions were read from citizens of Jefferson, King and Pierce counties praying for legislation on this important subject, which shows that the Territory jealously watches over the unfortunates placed in her charge. The bill failed to pass. At the afternoon session it was evident from the number of persons in the lobby that public feeling was aroused as regarded asylum matters, and when H B 57, 'an act to establish a hospital for the insane in Washington Territory,' was taken up, every one in a moment became interested. Being on its second reading, Mr Grinnell introduced an amendment to the bill, which would have had the effect of leaving the system in its old condition. He did not believe in appointing trustees and boards of directors when anything out of the usual course was to be transacted, and as far as the present system was concerned, he was of the opinion that a change would not make it better.

Mr Evans having called Mr Ringer to the chair, took the floor in defense of the bill. As far as the present system was concerned, he was in favor of carrying out the agreement [illegible] and paying every cent of indebtedness incurred by him, which he believed had been expended by Mr Harmon for the good of those in his charge, but he would never raise his voice to support a system which he believed wrong from its very foundation. By the contract system, insane persons who were utterly unable to keep themselves were hurled out on the sometimes merciless hands of the lowest bidder. The honorable gentleman had known the contractor, Mr Harmon, for twenty four years—the man who has been made the target for two years for all the heaviest shots that could be fired from the tongues of slander and defamation. The gentleman felt glad to be able to say publicly that Mr Harmon had been basely slandered—he was not the monster that had been represented. On the contrary, he was a humane man—a man who was willing to do everything possible to alleviate the sufferings of the insane, and with such a record any Christian man might be content, but if under such generous treatment the system has proved a failure, then the sooner it was changed the better. The honorable gentleman was listened to with interest and his remarks carried with them a weight which could not well be overcome.

Mr Whitney produced the report of the Inspector of insane asylums by which it appeared that the contract system was not recognized at all.

Mr Ladd was opposed to vesting the care of the insane in the hands of any board of trustees. He believed this matter should have been attended to earlier in the session, instead of considering how they could best afford to tow a flag staff round Cape Horn to the Centennial, or debating the question of a man being allowed to marry his grandmother.

Mr Harmon wished the house to distinctly understand that he was not fighting for the contract system.

Mr Doubit paid a handsome tribute to the resident physician Dr Ballard, stating that his character was always considered high while attending to the East Portland asylum. A good deal had been said about Mr Harmon not discharging a man named Samuel Ross when he was sane, yet soon after his discharge Clark county was under the expense of sending him back again to the asylum as insane as ever.

The question being on the final passage of the bill resulted as follows:

Ayes—Messrs Abrams, Cooke, Crawford, Hannah, Harris, Hodges, Hughes, Huntingdon, Karr, Kelly, Lloyd, Lynch, Newland, Richardson, Ringer, Russell, Ruth, Shrum, Scott, Wimpy, Whitney, Wood and the Speaker—23.

Noes—Messrs Doubit, Foster, Grinnell, Ladd, Miller—5.

Absent—Mr Ferguson.

Excused—Mr Harmon.

So the bill passed.

SNOQUALMIE PASS BILL

On the 23d ult a bill was introduced in the lower house for the construction of a wagon road through Snoqualmie pass. The bill, owing to the strong feeling that existed toward it, or for some other cause, failed to pass, to the chagrin and disappointment of several members in both houses who took every opportunity to rake the matter up and make more of it than it was worth.

On the 6th inst a bill was introduced in the council entitled 'An act permitting persons to endow the Territorial University and Public Schools,' and by some means the title was changed so as to read 'An act permitting persons to construct a road across the Cascade mountains via Snoqualmie pass.' Of course it was nothing but a grand lottery scheme, such as may be heard of in Wyoming, Kentucky, [illegible] for the erection of certain buildings, plausibly presented to a fortune hunting public. The bill passed the council without difficulty, and on coming to the house was severely commented on. The principal question was as to whether the end would justify the means? whether it was better to kill the bill and thus deprive the territory of a great benefit or pass it and allow a generous public to lose a few dollars? For the purpose of making a compromise with their conscience the house amended by striking from its provisions every county excepting King and Yakima, which were the only two directly interested, and in this way the bill passed. In addition to this a memorial was presented to Congress asking for an appropriation for the purpose of aiding in this great work, so there is every chance of the Snoqualmie pass becoming in time a public thoroughfare.

NEWSPAPERS FOR THE INSANE.

Your reporter some time since referred to the fact that the insane patients took great pleasure in reading papers and examining pictorials, and urged the necessity of supplying the poor creatures with such papers as might be interesting to them. It is pleasant to be able to state, and creditable to the gentleman who introduced the bill (Mr Harmon) that H B 172 provides for supplying one copy of each newspaper published in Washington Territory for the use of the insane, and as a last appeal I would ask the people of the Territory who can afford it, to contribute whatever illustrated papers and periodicals they can spare for so worthy an object, and I would also suggest that the unfortunate prisoners confined in our unhealthy, good-for-nothing, abominable, badly ventilated holes, called by the high-sounding title of jails, should also share in the distribution.

God pity the wretched prisoner
In his lonely cell to-day
Whatever the sins that tripped him,
God pity him, still I pray

By the way I should like to ask here what was done with that petition from a prisoner confined in the Pierce county jail, which detailed such a miserable state of affairs in that rotten institution? Was it suppressed purposely in the Council for fear of spoiling some pet measure, or was it thrown in the waste basket because the spelling and grammar was not very good? Is it right or just for the people of this Territory to allow such grievances to exist without trying to remedy them? I think not, and the sooner they are looked after the better it will be for those concerned.

QUESTION OF PRIVILEGE

During the last day's session Mr Foster moved that the chairman of the committee on education be instructed to report forthwith to the House on the matter of a petition presented by certain residents of Port Townsend relative to relocating their county seat. The chairman stated that he had mislaid the petition, and was unable to produce it. Mr Foster insisted on his rights, and demanded the petition, at least. The committee were granted until evening to make their report, and when that time came Mr Foster again arose and demanded the report of the committee. A majority and minority report were both submitted, together with the missing petition, of which the following is an exact copy:

PORT TOWNSEND, Nov 1 1875

We, the undersigned citizens of Jefferson county, would respectfully ask your honorable body to pass a law authorizing us to relocate the county seat and we will always pray. Signed (and a million more), Albert Briggs, J G C Clinger, J M Hammond, J J Van Bokkelen and E L Tibbals.

This petition carried such weight with it that a bill was presented and passed to the above effect, and happened to be the very last bill approved by the governor during the session.

RELIEF BILLS

A great deal of time was very uselessly spent by some of the members of the House in discussing the propriety of passing certain relief bills for work actually performed during the session and expenses otherwise incurred, and especially was this the case with regard to a bill for the relief of Tacoma Lodge No 4 I O G T, for rent of Territorial library room, which was charged at the rate of $15 per month. The remarks made by one member were considered very much out of place, especially as they regarded an Order in which he may one day be glad to obtain a membership, and had he but known that he was insulting several members of the Legislature, as well as outsiders, he would certainly not have spoken as he did.

LIVELY TIMES

As the hour of adjournment approached the interest seemed increasing, and the lobby all the evening, many ladies being [illegible], was crowded to excess until the hour of midnight. About 1 P M the governor's nominations were reached, and then came the tug of war. It seems that during the day Mr. Pickering, in his usually blunt but honest manner, informed some members that unless they voted for his measure (the hospital for the insane) he would throw off on them, and vote in favor of the governor's nominees. Of course they passed the bill, but no sooner were they out of the frying-pan than they got into the fire, and in this way: Mr Sovey had stuck to the Democratic side up to the last day, when something (no one knows what) caused him to swerve, and the check rein not being on, the chaise was tilted over and the occupants were found floundering around in the mud.

The action of Mr Sovey was very severely criticised, so much so that a resolution was drafted, signed by all the Democrats, accusing him of having acted a dishonorable part. Whether this is so or not I am not in a position to say, for I have always found Mr Sovey a perfect gentleman, and one not likely to act the part imputed to him without having good cause for it.

COUNCIL CONFIRM THE NOMINATIONS.

The nominations made by the governor and approved by the council were as follows: Auditor, Colonel John R. Wheat, lawyer, Olympia; treasurer, Francis Tarbell, agent, Olympia; librarian, Fred S Holmes, printer, Olympia. Commissioners of immigration, Messrs A. H. H Stuart, Olympia; O P Lacy, Walla Walla; L B Hastings, Port Townsend. Trustees of hospital for insane: J W Brazee, Skamania; John Saltar, Steilacoom; G A Barnes, Olympia; Geo D Hill, Seattle; Arthur Phinney, Port Ludlow. The only nomination that failed to be confirmed was that of superintendent of schools, so I presume the present incumbent will hold on.

The most important event of the session being over, interest in all other matters began to wane. The House, as usual, indulged in fun, speech making and jokes, and at one time called on the doorkeeper, Mr Jones of Walla Walla, to speak on the subject of woman's rights, which he did in a very efficient manner, making points and striking hard blows at some of the members, in a very telling and yet business like manner. As Mr. Jones has lately been called to the bar, I have no doubt he will make a mark for himself in his legal capacity which will not be easily erased.

CLOSING HOURS

As it drew near midnight the question was asked if the session must terminate the moment the hands of the clock reached that hour, and the governor having been interrogated on the subject in an unofficial manner gave it as his opinion that the session need not close before 10 A. M. next day, if necessary. Somehow the answer made by his excellency got mixed up, and it was soon after stated in various quarters that the governor intended keeping the Legislative body together until 10 A. M. the following morning. As nothing was further from his thoughts than doing this, it is but fair to mention the matter just as it occurred.

The enrolling clerk, Miss Nickels, having finished her labors (and by the way, I might state that her office was no sinecure, from the fact that on the last day about twenty seven bills had to be enrolled for the Council, all of which was done in a most creditable manner, which might be considered as at least one point made in defense of woman's rights), all the bills having been approved by the governor, the council appointed their committee to wait on his excellency for further orders. None having to be given, the council adjourned sine die, and very soon after the house, having gone through the same formality, followed the example of the upper house, and by 1 A M the doors of the capitol were closed and the [illegible] session of 1875 was at an end. Sic transit gloria mundi.

Previous to adjournment the thanks of the house and council were returned to the presiding and other officers of their respective houses, and I must say in closing, that I have never met any gentlemen more obliging than they have all been in their several capacities. To Mr. O'Brien, the efficient chief clerk of the house, and Mr Perkins, who held the same office in the council, my sincere thanks [illegible] porter, are mainly due; also to Mr. H. H. Halbert, the watchman of the lower house, for various courtesies extended, in return for which, I need only say that Mr. [illegible] proved himself a faithful and efficient officer. However as want of space forbids, I can only repeat my thanks to all.

I have already forwarded by telegraph the titles of all the bills approved by the governor during the last two days of the session, which together with those contained in my letter of the 10th inst., constitute all that have been signed.

In my last published telegram I made a slight error in one of the titles which it may be well to correct here. The bill was an act to prevent the indiscriminate sale and use of poisons, not 'to persons,' as published. While correcting errors I should like to make a correction in my report concerning the [illegible] distributed during the fair held here by the W W I A. The report on pharmaceutical preparations exhibited by Mr. Neste of this city should have been "W I C. Neste & Co., fine display of preparations in pharmacy, perfumery, every article being [illegible] and put up by himself, first premium; [illegible]"

PACIFIC DISASTER.

Our people have not yet recovered from the terrible shock they received by the loss of the steamer Pacific, and every hour during the day persons can be heard asking the question "Any further news from the wreck?" But alas! I fear little more will be heard of the unfortunate persons who took passage on the ill-starred vessel. I was informed to-day by a gentleman from Puyallup that the loss of Mr. Vining, together with the large quantity of hops consigned to him by residents of the valley, will bring sorrow and trouble to many a family in that vicinity. The amount of hops on board is supposed to have been about 80,000 pounds, which would probably have [illegible] about $10,000. Mr Ezra Meeker had a quantity on board, which were insured; therefore, I presume he will not lose very heavily, but as for the rest they were uninsured. Mr. Vining's life was unfortunately not insured, which is still to be deplored as he left a family of children to mourn his untimely death. The feeling here is strongly against the management of the Pacific, both before and since she struck, and also against the inspector who would dare to give her the title of A. 1, when (as is surmised) she was in a bad condition. The sooner the government inquires into these matters the better it will be for all. There surely must be a Plimsoll in this country. Who will take the subject up and put it in its proper light?

VALEDICTORY

And now, as I am about to say good bye for the present, I shall take the opportunity of returning thanks to all those who have helped me in my endeavors to present matters for the information of your numerous readers. I have refrained at all times from hurting the feelings of any, and the task has been at times a difficult one—as far as my own individual feelings were concerned—and as the legislative session is over, I trust that all may understand that what I have [illegible] has been said with a good intention, and always with the hope that it might be "seed sown in good ground."

TUESDAY MORNING NOVEMBER 16 1875.

[illegible] REFORM SCHOOL

It has become pretty generally understood, if we mistake not, that the effort to establish a Reform School in this county is destined to fail those who have been giving the subject special attention, having come to the conclusion that it is impracticable to raise the amount of money required by law as a condition precedent to the appropriation to be made by the county. We had hoped the means might be raised without serious difficulty but the general impression seems to be that the institution ought to be under State control, for State purposes and not a merely local affair. Many who would give liberally in order to secure the establishment of the institution but for this objection discourage the effort to build it up by and for Multnomah county alone.

Assuming that this county plan will not succeed, what is to be done? The subject must not be allowed to pass out of mind. It is of too great moment to society for that. To allow the children who have fallen into criminal habits to go at large and extend the baleful influence of their example and association to other children every day till one or more from every family has become a victim, and every household is brought to grief, is a thing not to be thought of. On the other hand the proposition that children of tender years will be sent to the penitentiary when they commit the crimes for which adults would receive that punishment, ought not to be accepted as a final solution of the difficulty. If that is the only protection the community has or can have under the law, let there be no maudlin sentiment against adopting it; but let the sense of humanity so far have sway as to incite to the providing of some other punitive and reformatory institution for youthful offenders as soon as that can be done successfully.

The punitive principle should not be forgotten in considering this subject. While children confined for offenses against the law should be placed under circumstances more emphatically reformatory than those that attend an ordinary felon in his confinement, while reformatory agencies should be regarded as the main feature of the institution, the confinement should never be divested of its character of punishment. Those who are sent to such institutions for crime should feel that they are paying the penalty of their vicious lives, as well as being subjected to discipline intended to benefit them by strengthening and stimulating their moral faculties. The Reform School should be a terror to those outside of it. Boys should never be allowed to regard it as a pleasant place to go, where they could have a good time when they have become so depraved that it is deemed unsafe for them to be allowed to run at large.

And this brings us to the proposition which, it seems to us, meets the demands of the case. Let there be a Reform School organized as a part of the State Penitentiary—a Reform School Department. We see no considerable objection to such a plan, while it possesses many advantages. It would be entirely safe. The young criminals would be as completely shut out from society and [illegible] under control of their keepers, as could be desired. The expense would be but a trifle, as the State owns the grounds and perhaps all the buildings necessary for a long time and would add nothing to the guarding force about the prison. There would have to be about two employes immediately connected with the care of the children and these could be got at a compensation not exceeding $1 200 each per year. Let this subject have careful consideration. It has been spoken of favorably by some of our citizens who have taken an active interest in the subject of preventing juvenile crime, and, we are persuaded, it will be the more favorably received generally the more it is studied.

A GOOD CASE FOR THE EXERCISE OF THE PARDONING POWER

Salem is the scene of just such a murderous assault in open court as was made by a defendant in a justice's court in this city nine years ago. The case will be recollected in which a defendant drew his pistol and shot a witness who was testifying, killing him instantly. In Salem, however, the defendant is not so accurate a shot, and instead of slaying his enemy who is on the witness stand, misses him at three successive shots, but sends a bullet crashing through the brain of a gentleman who happened to be in the court room, a stranger to the controversy. Of course the perpetrator of the deed is under arrest. He will probably in due time be tried and convicted, and sentenced to the penitentiary. That will end the matter for a few months and then he will be pardoned out, as the cold blooded murderer in the Portland case above referred to was pardoned out. If this be not the final upshot of the matter Watkins, who shot his man in the court at Salem, will have abundant ground to complain that the Governor does not treat him as he treats others. He can cite, not only the Portland case mentioned before, but a case that went from this county a few days ago, in which the Governor, without any apparent reason—only that some people had asked him to do so—annulled the well considered verdict of a jury of this county and the judgment of the court thereon, and set free without a month's or a week's punishment a person who had just had a fair and impartial trial and convicted of a felony.

It is a shocking thing, this taking the life of a fellow man, and it is especially shocking when done in the temple of justice, and while the administration of the law is in progress. We do not perceive just now however, why that or any other crime may not be committed with the most perfect safety in this State and we advise all people who read of the transaction in the Salem Court yesterday to restrain their feelings and not indulge in any unnecessary indignation over a matter which after all is of no importance. A little reasoning will show that the courts of justice are entitled to none of the consideration they enjoy among the people anyhow. If the solemn judgments of the courts are of so little dignity that they are to be nullified by the executive when any few good people ask it, why shall the more informal proceedings by which those judgments are reached be so very sacred that they may not be varied with a little pistol practice whenever any of the parties concerned think that would relieve the monotony of the court room.

Mr Beecher's paper The Christian Union is at it again. This time it is the appointment of Zach Chandler to be Secretary of the Interior that inspires its critical editor to say:

Observing people, no matter how great may be their respect for ex-Senator Chandler's abilities, must be pardoned for wondering what hitherto concealed mental quality has fitted him for the position of constitutional adviser to the President. But that excellent paper never fails to perceive the good as well as the evil in current events and therefore it finds some consolation in the thought that possibly the President did not want any more advisers than he already had and that he appointed Mr Chandler simply for the purpose of having the administrative work of the office honestly performed. Mr Chandler is therefore congratulated on the grand opportunity presented for him to distinguish himself by introducing honesty into the Interior Department. Delano, if his eye should fall upon The Christian Union will very likely ask the President for another certificate of character.

The Sacramento Record Union thanks the Republican gains in the recent election in New York were made at the expense of the moral tone and respectability of the party. This remark is occasioned by the fact that the Republicans, in order to accomplish the result formed a coalition with the canal ring and with John Morrissey and his sore headed Democratic following and made war upon the reform measures prosecuted by Governor Tilden. These unsavory alliances were charged upon the Republicans during the campaign by the opposition press, but the Record Union is the first journal of acknowledged Republican principles or preferences so far as we have seen that has admitted the truth of the accusation.

CITY.

ASSAULTED—BORNE OVER.—On Sunday an altercation occurred in a saloon in East Portland, between Mike Connelly, the yard master at the east side depot and a man named Mathews during which the latter seized a tumbler and dealt the former a powerful blow on the head. Mr Connelly's head was severely cut by the tumbler, and he was felled to the floor by the violence of the blow. After striking Connelly Mathews left the saloon and was not seen until yesterday morning. A complaint was lodged against Mathews charging him with assaulting with a dangerous weapon and he was arrested by the city marshal yesterday and brought before the recorder. An examination was held which resulted in Mathews being held to answer the charge before the grand jury. His bonds were fixed at $300.

THE BEAUTIFUL SNOWBALL.—A fashionably young gentleman dressed in the latest style with elegant stove-pipe and faultless kids was passing up Washington street yesterday humming that beautiful and plaintive air The snow the beautiful snow and no doubt thinking of the happiness in store for him when seated in a dashing cutter with his true love by his side (and it may be speculating on the probable length of the drive at the rate of five dollars an hour) when crash bang came a snowball giving him a plaster over the left optic covering his shirt bosom with dirt and snow and tipping his hat in a manner beautiful to behold. The young man uttered a mild ejaculation not found in the religious text books and started after the young hoodlum who meantime had beaten a hasty retreat and was safe around the corner. The young man is said to have been an earnest advocate of the reform school, but now declares the penitentiary too good for such chaps.

VISITING THE PRECINCTS.—The tax roll has been completed and placed in the hands of Sheriff Jeffery for collection. As required by law, and also for the accommodation of the taxpayers, the sheriff will attend at the usual places of voting in the following precincts in the county for the collection of taxes on the days named respectively between the hours of 10 A M and 3 P M each day: Willamette precinct, William Loves, Tuesday, 16th 1875; Multnomah, Wednesday 17th; Powell's Valley, schoolhouse, Thursday 18th; Sandy Zimmerman's, Friday, 19th; Fulton, Saturday, 20th; Sauvie's Island, M Gilihan's, Monday, 22d; East Portland, Tuesday 23; North East Portland, Wednesday 24th; Grant, Thursday, 25th; North Portland, Friday 26th; Couch, Saturday, 27th; Central, Monday 29th; Madison, Tuesday 30th; Western, Wednesday, December 1st; South Portland, Tuesday 2d. The sheriff visited St Johns yesterday.

NEW SPECIES OF SPRUCE.—Mr G W Walling the well-known fruit-grower, has left at this office a shrub that has been cultivated in his nursery near Oswego to which no name has as yet been applied. The growth is a species of spruce which is found growing in the Cascades and Coast Range of mountains. It is indigenous to Oregon soil and climate but the shrub to be seen at this office has been reasonably domesticated by reason of the culture which Mr Walling has bestowed upon it. The shrub on exhibition is wholly unlike any of the [illegible] yet discovered. It is a hardy growth and as an ornamental shrub has few equals.

TRAIN DELAYED.—Recent heavy rains caused a land slide to occur along the line of the Oregon and California railroad yesterday at a point about five miles beyond Comstock's Station. Owing to this, the regular train did not reach [illegible] on time yesterday afternoon. Delay was unavoidable, as the earth and stones had to be moved from the track before the train could pass. Fortunately no accident happened to the cars or those on board. About 9 o'clock in the evening the train came in, bringing passengers, mails and express. The express train left the east side depot on time, and passed the down train this side of Salem.

REAL ESTATE SOLD.—Yesterday forenoon Sheriff Jeffery sold at auction, to satisfy a judgment, the following described parcels of real estate in this city: Lots 1 and 2, in block 21, with the handsome residence on, $11,050; Lots 7 and 8 in the same block, $1,412 50; South half of lots 3 and 8 in block 1 with the brick building thereon was sold for $150 subject to a mortgage of $20,000 with accruing interest.

PHYSICIAN APPOINTED.—Dr Schumacher who has been the visiting physician at the county poor house for some time resigned the position a few weeks since to accept the situation of resident physician at the Umatilla Indian reservation. Dr Curtis C Strong has been appointed by the county court to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Dr Schumacher.

WEATHER REPORT.—From the records of the U S Signal Station of Observation, Portland Oregon, November 15 1875

CIRCUIT COURT.—Judge Shattuck went to Oregon City yesterday morning to preside at the term of court which convened at that place. To-morrow morning Judge Shattuck will hold court here which will probably continue until the 24th inst. Jurors who have not been excused for the term are expected to be in attendance to-morrow on the opening of the court.

STEAMERS DELAYED.—A private note from Astoria dated the 14th says: "The steamers Oregon and California were still lying at the wharf here this (Monday) morning. They endeavored to go to sea yesterday but could not get over the bar, owing to its roughness, and were compelled to return. These steamers will probably succeed in crossing to-day at noon."

SNOW.—We are informed that there is plenty of snow back of Astoria on the hills and also opposite on the Washington Territory side. In the vicinity of Oak Point snow fell during Saturday night to the depth of two inches. At Columbia City and St Helens the snow was two inches deep as the Astoria boat passed at 2:30 o'clock P. M. yesterday.

FOUND GUILTY—SENTENCED.—The jury in the district court at Vancouver yesterday in the case of the Territory vs Burke and Hughill, for the murder of Louis Miller, rendered a verdict of manslaughter. The judge sentenced each to one year's imprisonment in the penitentiary and a fine of $500.

ATTRACTIVE.—A very neat circular has been issued by the Chicago Rock Island and Pacific R. R. Co., on the reverse side of which appear lithographic prints of the centennial buildings. The idea is a good one and the company will no doubt reap a benefit through it.

REFORM SCHOOL MEETING.

Pursuant to adjournment a meeting was held last evening at the Young Men's Christian Association's rooms to hear the report of the committee appointed two weeks ago at the first meeting held at Oro Fino Theater.

Quite a number of our citizens were present at the meeting.

Hon H W Corbett, the chairman, called the meeting to order and stated briefly the purpose for which those present had assembled.

J W Whalley, Esq., the chairman of the committee, was called upon, who came forward and submitted the following REPORT.

The undersigned committee appointed to devise ways and means for the purpose of establishing a Reform School in Portland, Oregon, respectfully report that they have attended to the duty assigned them and beg leave to submit the following:

On the evenings of the [illegible] and 12th November 1875 your committee met and discussed the matters referred to them and after full examination unanimously came to the following conclusions:

First. Growing hoodlumism not only in Portland but in every town of importance in the State imperatively requires the establishment of some reformatory institution in which vicious habits may be eradicated, correct principles instilled and instruction given in some useful trade or trades by the practice of which its inmates may be prepared to earn an honest living.

Second.—That the expense of organizing, establishing and conducting such an institution is so great as to preclude hope of success if voluntary subscription is relied on to supply the means.

Third.—That Portland is not so well adapted for the location of such an institution as is the city of Salem.

Fourth.—That the State alone can and that it is its duty to apply the remedy and correct the evil of which all complain.

Fifth.—That action should at once be taken in this meeting by appointing a committee with full power to draft a bill to be submitted to the next legislative assembly, providing for the establishment at Salem, Oregon, of a State Reform School and that said committee be instructed to take such steps as in their judgment may be necessary to secure the earnest and active co-operation of the citizens of other counties in the passage of the proposed bill.

Respectfully submitted.

J I ATKINSON,
J W WHALLEY,
WM WADHAMS,
H Y THOMPSON.

Pending the motion to adopt the report the question of establishing a reform school was discussed at considerable length by Rev Dr A L Lindsley, Judge J H Woodward, J W Whalley, Esq., Wm Wadhams, and others.

Considerable discussion followed when after being slightly amended the report of the committee was adopted.

It was moved and seconded that a committee be appointed by the chair in compliance with the recommendation made in the report.

Mr Whalley suggested to the meeting that at least ten persons ought to be appointed on the committee. There should be a sub committee appointed by the general committee to draft a suitable bill and another sub committee on correspondence. The duty of the last named committee should be to correspond with prominent persons in different portions of the State—especially the clergy—in relation to the importance of establishing such a reformatory institution and endeavor to secure their sympathies in the measure, their interest and hearty co-operation. That gentleman moved that a committee of ten persons be appointed.

Mr Whalley's motion prevailed whereupon the president named as the members of such committee the following gentlemen: Rev A L Lindsley, M P Deady, Rev R Bentley, W [illegible] Hill, Wm Wadhams, Rev D J Pierce, H Y Thompson, Rev G H Atkinson, Rev T L Eliot, J W Whalley.

Mr Whalley moved that the name of Hon H W Corbett be added to the committee which motion unanimously prevailed.

RESOLUTION.

Rev T. L. Eliot offered the following resolution which, on motion was adopted by the meeting:

Resolved, That this meeting recommend the passage by the common council of the city of Portland of an ordinance for the arrest and punishment of the youths of both sexes under the age of 16 years who without permission of their parents or guardians are found on the streets or in improper places after night fall.

Resolved, That the secretary of this meeting be instructed to present the above resolution to the common council for their respectful consideration.

On motion the meeting adjourned.

BRIEF NOTES.

Steamer due this evening.

Thanksgiving one week from next Thursday.

Fine noses were quite abundant on the streets yesterday.

The Scandinavian Society's hop to-night at Good Templar hall.

The quantities of floating drift wood render navigation quite difficult.

No gentle hoodlum finds amusement in potting Chinamen with snowballs.

The steamer O[illegible] is still running between here and Oregon City in place of the E. N. Cooke.

Next Saturday the big California races will come off, providing, of course, the weather is propitious.

A gentleman from Washington county informs us that the snow in that section is several inches deep.

Save a big bill of expense by having work done now instead of waiting till a freeze up forces you to do so.

The west side train did not reach here until after 12 o'clock yesterday, owing to the difficulty experienced in climbing the summit.

The supply of WEEKLY OREGONIANS was exhausted early on Sunday, owing to anxiety to procure it for full particulars of the Pacific disaster.

The McGibeny family and Mr Chas Lenly have kindly tendered their services for the concert to be given at Masonic Hall on Friday evening.

The gymnasium department of the Turner Hall building will be opened this evening, when the gentleman who teaches the gymnastique expects old and new pupils to attend.

The prospectus of the Oregon Literary Monthly has been received. It will be published by Mr W P Keady at Salem and the initial number will be issued about the 1st of January.

SHOOTING AFFAIR AT SALEM.

WATKINS, WHILE UNDERGOING EXAMINATION ON A CHARGE OF ADULTERY, FIRES THREE SHOTS AT WHITEMAN, THE PROSECUTING WITNESS, AND FATALLY WOUNDS A [illegible].

Wells, Fargo & Co kindly send us the following account of a shooting affray which transpired yesterday at Salem:

The county court room at Salem was the scene of a shooting affray which [illegible] may prove fatal [illegible]. It occurred about 3 o'clock P M and owing to [illegible] of the court room we are unable to send you the particulars at this early hour. Owing to the excitement attendant upon the occasion we could gather but [illegible] of the facts, which were substantially as follows: Watkins, who several days since was arrested on the charge of adultery with the wife of Whiteman, who a few days since was convicted of the crime of [illegible], was on examination for [illegible] before His Honor Judge Prettyman of the county court. J. P. Boise appeared for the prosecution and [illegible] for the defense.

The room about 18x40 in size was literally filled with spectators who were seated in chairs or standing against the wall as the case might be. Whiteman was seated on the witness stand a few feet to the right of the judge. He was giving in his testimony as to the circumstances that brought them together. The room was otherwise very quiet. Suddenly and without the least word of warning Watkins, who was seated by the side of his attorney and but about six feet distant, drew a revolver from the left inside breast pocket of his coat and commenced firing at Whiteman. The first shot of course brought everybody to their feet. Whiteman jumped from the chair and retreated behind the crowd, Watkins meanwhile keeping a range on him and firing whenever an opportunity presented itself regardless of others in the room who were doing some of the liveliest dodging on record. While wheeling half way around he had discharged his revolver four times when A J Donaldson picked up an arm chair and struck him a crushing blow on the head, felling him to the floor. The third shot struck D D Orton of this city, a painter by trade and the son-in-law of Mr Lamb of this city, the ball entering his face about one inch below the left temple inflicting a wound dangerous if not fatal, the leaden messenger lodging somewhere in the head.

Thomas Smith, the proprietor of the Chemeketa Hotel, barely escaped one shot, while George B Holman and numerous others had a close call. Whiteman, his intended victim, escaped without a scratch although he no doubt imagined for a moment that his time had come. It is the greatest mystery that none others were injured, the shooting being of the most reckless character. On being knocked down he was overpowered and Deputy Sheriff Barker at once arrested him and furnished him with quarters behind the bars of the county jail. Great excitement prevails and the feeling is very strong against Watkins, who was out on bail at the time, and who had he desired might have killed his man long ago without endangering the lives of so many citizens and innocent men. Orton was taken home in a carriage and at last accounts was lying very low.

MILITARY NOTES.

A general court martial will convene at Fort Klamath, Oregon, Monday, Nov 22, 1875, at 10 o'clock A. M., or as soon thereafter as practicable for the trial of such persons as may be properly brought before it. The following officers are detailed for the court: Captain Henry McElderry, assistant surgeon; Captain John I Johnston, 21st infantry; First Lieut John Q Adams, 1st cavalry; Second Lieut Geo S Hoyle, 1st cavalry; Second Lieut Willis Wittich, 21st infantry; First Lieut Frederick H E Ebstein, 21st infantry, judge advocate of the court.

The following has been published from the headquarters of Major General Schofield commanding the military division of the Pacific, San Francisco, Cal: First Lieut George W Evans, 21st infantry, is hereby detailed on the general recruiting service at Fort Vancouver, W T, under general orders No 125, War Department, adjutant general's office, Dec 15, 1870. Until further orders Lieut. Evans will enlist and reenlist men only for companies serving in the Department of the Columbia and under such special instructions from these headquarters as may be sent to him. All persons desiring to enlist in the army must apply in person to Lieut Evans at Fort Vancouver.

Under the requirements of Circular Letter from division headquarters, dated August 26 1875 at the request of Capt George A Wickes, assistant quartermaster, depot quartermaster, Vancouver, a board of survey to consist of Capt Robert Pollock (21st infantry), First Lieut Henry H Pierce (21st infantry) and Second Lieut Francis L Litonhead (21st infantry) will assemble at the quartermaster's depot Vancouver, Monday, the 15th inst, at 10 o'clock A. M., or as soon thereafter as practicable to examine with a view to alteration to conform to the standard 600 single and 11 double bitblanks (new) on hand for [illegible] for which Capt Wickes is responsible, reporting [illegible] of the authorized length.

CHRIST IN ART.

This work is admitted to be by far the most striking, characteristic and artistic representation of the life of Jesus ever made, and took instantly the admiration of Europe and obtained the grand diploma of honor at the exposition of Vienna.

The [illegible] the great critical authority of France said of it: "This work will rank side by side with the masterpieces [illegible] of the ages."

The official programme of the Vienna exhibition which was prepared under the supervision of the Austrian government said: "This beautiful work will cause M. Bida to rank with those great masters who have immortalized in art the records of Christianity."

The New York Times very justly affirms: "There have been no such illustrations of the Bible till now."

CHRIST IN ART is a reproduction of these wonderful scenes prepared at the great xylographic establishment of Brend Amour of Dusseldorf, engraved in the most elaborate and effective style of that famous engraver, contained in one hundred full page plates on steel and wood. The text gives the story of the words and acts of Jesus Christ in the very words of the four evangelists woven into a beautiful narrative by Edward Eggleston, D D, reading like a new poem or tragedy in the world's history. It is a book for all who love art and religion.

POLICE COURT—ADAMS, J.

State vs Mike Meskel, charged with assaulting Dan Colagan with a dangerous weapon to wit a knife. Defendant failed to appear when the case was called either by attorney or in person. He was released on his own recognizance when arrested last Saturday and having [illegible] it is not unreasonable to surmise that Meskel had suddenly [illegible] out at an early hour yesterday morning on the [illegible] of a steamer. As the charge is rather a serious one Mr. Meskel will likely prolong his stay for some time to come.

The charge against Dan Colagan, that of contempt of court—was dismissed. It was shown to the entire satisfaction of the court that the defendant was sick from the effects of the severe cut he had received on the arm and was not in a condition to obey the orders of the court which required his presence.

George Ferguson, a chronic drunkard, asked permission of the court to leave town. The judge mildly remarked that he would commit the defendant to jail for fifteen days in order to enable him to make up his mind.

Indian Tom was committed to the jail for seven days on a charge of being drunk.

City vs George Edwards, drunk, fined $10 and in default committed to jail for five days.

City vs Dan Williams, arrested for being drunk, sent to jail for five days in default of paying his fine.

Berg was required to answer a charge of being drunk. He answered very well but could not raise the required amount [illegible] him [illegible] down [illegible].

IS CHARLEY ROSS IN ENGLAND

[illegible]

(From the Philadelphia Times, Oct 9.)

Mr Walter L Baker [illegible] on the 8th of September, received a letter from Nelse Boothe saying that the latter assisted in the abduction and knew of the present whereabouts of Charley Ross and urging Baker to use the knowledge thus given him in restoring the child, the particulars of which have been published, received the following letter in Nelse Boothe's handwriting on the 8th inst. The letter was mailed in Philadelphia on the 8th and the New York date is evidently a blind:

NEW YORK, Oct 9.—Baker: You are a dam fool and Ross is crazy. Now you are in danger. I thought you had more sense. So hear you have almost lost your chance for getting the boy. What made you give it away? You must now do as I say, or I will go for you sure for God sake don't say anything to any one now but work for me. I want you to find Gusto and then I will ensure you the boy. If you go to Bradford Eng., and make inquiries, you can find him easy. You must be quiet about it when you find him, which is very easy to do. I will have it fixt for I will manage to get him a letter, and if I don't you go as I say and show him this. This winter he will be about there or York. I know this: you must keep from Ross and everybody else. Here is the secret: Gusto English name is Sam Herbit and by this name you will find him, but he is a [illegible]. I think it will be all right; tell him this, the child Boston gave you in New York is Charley Ross, and then tell him who Charley Ross is, for he don't know. I ought to kill you, for you have been trying your best to ruin me; do as I say, dam you, and stop you hunting for me. I want Ross to have his boy; you I leave next week and you can succeed; take this with you and don't show it to a living soul but Gusto or Herbit; if you do I will murder you, so beware Baker. I know you know Wm.

Mr. Baker then published the following personal in the Ledger on the 12th instant:

Boston: Send me an order on Herbet to deliver to me. I will go. B.

This personal brought out the following letter endorsing the order for the boy, which Mr Baker received on the 14th. The envelope bore a two-cent stamp and was postmarked "Philadelphia." It was written on a small slip of paper evidently out of an account book and was as follows:

Baker I seen you notice yesterday. I ges all right. I will not write any more, not one line, but I want Ross to have his boy, and you to get there [illegible] this other page to Sam Herbet or Gusto. You [illegible] I will hear all about it. When you get back. Nelse Boothe.

If he can't read you read it to him, he will know all about it.

In the letter was folded the following order written on [illegible] paper and addressed on an outside [illegible]:

New York, Oct 11, 1875.—[illegible] the man Baker the little boy which [illegible] in York State America. I have not [illegible] and I guess we can [illegible] a big stake, and I ges we can [illegible] all right. If I owe you anything send me word by Baker and I will fix it. You know what I mean. [illegible] Sprague [illegible] Baker all ready to come to York State, so don't detain him. Oblige Hiram Sprague, your old friend Boston.

Mr Baker went to Mr Ross as soon as he received this letter and gave him all the information he had. Mr Ross had previously telegraphed to the Scotland Yard detectives but what reply he received if any is not known. Joseph Ross, Mr Ross' brother, traced the man known as Gusto and found that such a man came to this country nearly three years ago and traveled from New York to Savannah in a wagon with two horses and accompanied by a woman and several children. He was traced to New York again, where in October, 1874, he left the country in a steamship.

Mr Baker has traced Nelse Boothe to a house in Acorn alley, to Low Spruce street between Seventh and Eighth but he has not yet been arrested.

Mr Baker says that his friends have furnished the money to pay his expenses to Europe, and that he intends to start in a Cunard steamer to-day for Liverpool.

[illegible] MORNING NOVEMBER 16, 1875.

SILENT CITIES.

The following poem was composed and read as a [illegible] at St. Helen's Hall, by one of [illegible]. The subject is an elevated [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] ...

O silent cities! [illegible] of the past
[illegible]
[illegible] your [illegible] witness,
[illegible] place of good and ill
Upon the wind of march that o'er ye [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] with sharp pain while
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] of whom thy proud king said
[illegible]
[illegible] The [illegible] stalks
Where once through thy frequented pathway
[illegible]
A [illegible] the lonely night-bird cries!
From the [illegible] thy crumbled towers,
And the [illegible] of the desert sing
[illegible] as 'twere a haunted place,
[illegible]
[illegible] and wander at thee,
[illegible]
[illegible]

O [illegible] w[illegible] array
Of [illegible] the track[illegible] main
Whose priceless purple was a curse to [illegible]
[illegible] thy glory now is naught
Save a [illegible] name With hollow sound
The [illegible] waves break on thy deserted coast
While thy [illegible]
[illegible] fence [illegible]
For wandering flocks that browse and bleat when once
Thy lordly towers overlooked the sea.

[illegible] like the eagle's nest
[illegible] hills
[illegible]
No warlike hosts [illegible]
[illegible]
As when thy sons [illegible]
Now, [illegible] dragg [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
The lonely traveler's [illegible] shudder chill
[illegible] with weeds [illegible]
And [illegible] with the damp [illegible]
The relics of a race who so hostile hand
Was ever raised against all other men
Whose forsworn all the kindreds of the earth
The dwellings of a people proud and strong,
Whose [illegible]

Ye [illegible] cities of Italian pleasant shore
(Above whose towers these many centuries
The fruitful vine has yearly budded fair)
[illegible] destruction by a fiery death,
The great and small, the noble and the low
Alike arrested in their daily walks
When [illegible] of death came closing down
Upon your fated walls and blotted out
Your busy life in one appalling hour
Who shall describe the horror of that day
The sparkling wine cup lifted to the lips
[illegible] loud and bitter cry
The shrieks of the wounded [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]

[illegible] World, [illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible]
[illegible] in your busy street
Were they of warlike or of peaceful mind?
[illegible] in ages dark
[illegible]
[illegible]
From which your kings the Children of the Sun
[illegible] story?
We know not [illegible] but your wasted ruins speak
[illegible] against the wrongs
That sapped your strength and all your power [illegible]

[illegible] whose bound no living man
Hath ever [illegible]
Whose narrow streets are shaded by the yew
And mournful cypress! In your silent walks
No sound of busy voices may be heard
But your mute citizens having fled the strife
And tumult of this world, are at rest,
O ye most favored cities of the dead
[illegible] low of the [illegible] spire
The solemn chanting through the soft still air
Is borne [illegible]
Across your mounds, white with the daisy snow
The [illegible] comes from which death seems so far
And [illegible] through these streets as holy ground
[illegible] the man whose hardening cares
Have weighed his life down till he longs for death,
[illegible] the grave rest is so near
And [illegible] life so like a tale that's told
Come, in their thoughtful moods and ponder here
Upon the dwelling where we all must rest
And on the mysteries of another world

O silent cities! of whatever name
Whether renowned for what ye once have been
Or lost forever from the minds of men!
Let us with reverence learn from your decay
The state of all things earthly and our own.
But while we learn this lesson, in our souls
[illegible] the faith to show the wondrous love
Of [illegible] who promised by His own High Name
[illegible] to His Everlasting Home

There are no new developments in regard to bus[illegible] at this point except that the bad weather has [illegible] transactions somewhat It seems evident that interior merchants do not propose to [illegible] very large stocks, desiring only to meet the wants of consumers. This greater degree of prudence enables them to keep their business more [illegible] under their control and payments are made with greater promptness and values rule with greater steadiness

For a long time past principles of conservatism have been forced upon the capital of the country by circumstances and in many instances long credits have been refused because it was seen to be the only safe method by which an opening could be made to safely escape trouble Of late however there has been some relaxation of the strict rules in this respect and though business men cannot act too prudently for a long time to come remembering that the caution which has been serviceable in times of closeness is not less preservative than creative, and may prove equally beneficial in more prosperous days.

An exchange from an Eastern trade point, says The bank statements are now being watched with great interest, and from all parts of the country these statements are favorable There is no doubt, but that the return of confidence and credit which has been so often predicted has begun; and if no unlooked for cause of trouble intervenes a further advance and improvement in that direction is not at all improbable but there is one precaution which should command the attention of our bankers jobbers and merchants and that is short credits

The Wheat Supply

The [illegible] a journal devoted especially to the [illegible] breadstuffs the supply in the various growing sections the wants of importing countries [illegible] has a lengthy article discussing the supply [illegible] market of wheat. [illegible] its figures from the [illegible] and says [illegible] referring to the [illegible] into the United Kingdom for a period of [illegible] years we find that when the United Kingdom's [illegible] are the greatest, that Egypt, Turkey and [illegible] export largely [illegible] per [illegible] in the year 1867 the United Kingdom only [illegible] hundred weights Austria, Turkey and Egypt only contributed 675,435 hundred [illegible] in 1867, when the imports into the United Kingdom [illegible] hundred weight is the [illegible] contributed 3,899,021 hundred weights, and again in 1868 another short year in the United Kingdom [illegible] hundred weights For the year 1865 Germany and France exported to the United Kingdom 9,070,163 hundred weights and in 1874 they only exported 6,000,76 hundred weights to the United Kingdom.

Although importing largely from other nations the United Kingdom looks to the United States and Russia for her chief supply In substantiation of the above we present the following table of imports by hundred weights into the United Kingdom from 1869 to 1874 inclusive Years ending with December 31

Years.	All Countries.	U. S.	Russia.
1869	37,890,829	13,9[illegible],500	9[illegible]
1870	30,[illegible],229	10,200,229	10,[illegible]
1871	39,[illegible]	17,66[illegible],153	15,6[illegible]
1872	4[illegible]	10,4[illegible]	17,8[illegible]
1873	43,8[illegible]	[illegible]	8[illegible]
1874	41,4[illegible]	20,6[illegible]	[illegible]

The above table of imports establishes another very important fact viz that while the imports into the United Kingdom for the past two years from the United States have increased those from Russia have decreased Official reports from Russia give the yield of wheat in the years 1873 and in 1874 up to the previous season and that this year's yield is reported by all authorities as an average It necessarily follows that the stock held in Russia must be very large. Indeed, at one shipping port Odessa, the stock was greater December 1 1874 [illegible]

[illegible] time [illegible]

Daily Market Review

The exceedingly bad weather which has prevailed during the day has retarded business in many ways [illegible] dull even for Monday which is never an average day with the [illegible] week [illegible] the movements relating to shipping interests a great deal [illegible] [illegible] dispatch as to make it and [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] present activity by the unusual good [illegible] stage of the water in the Upper Willamette which is being taken advantage of by holders of grain along its banks [illegible] the water, as well as by the [illegible] number of vessels to load

This afternoon the current quotations [illegible] dropped to [illegible] consider it as established [illegible]

The flour market is still fairly active and shipments are large. The quotations for flour [illegible] have recently been lower in proportion to the rates borne by the raw material and a reduction in the price of wheat will [illegible] advantage.

Oats come in slowly [illegible] good or fair lots

Mill [illegible] the market [illegible] the local trade [illegible] lines there is a scarcity and higher rates [illegible] prevail

246 ACRES four miles southeast of Salem on the railroad with Mill creek running through it. This is the choicest farming land in Marion county with fine springs consisting in part of the old Record station claim, on which I raised the present year fifty bushels of wheat and three tons of timothy per acre. The first crop of oats ever raised on part of this land measured ninety four bushels per acre grain weighed and ground chained by Mr Alfred Stanton of Salem

4 200 ACRES of prairie and light brush land with timber for farming purposes bounded by the Willamette river for four miles, beautiful lake on the east, boat landings all along the river commencing four miles north of Salem—all choice grain land—the largest and most suitable body of land to be found in the Willamette valley to be purchased by a colony. To be sold from $17 to $25 per acre This land will all be immediately resurveyed and can be sold in larger or smaller parcels to suit purchasers It can be subdivided to the best possible advantage and I can offer any person or persons or colony of persons desiring to purchase homes in the best part of the Willamette valley near the city of Salem and within reach of the best social advantages as well as most favorably located with respect to markets, greater advantages on more favorable terms than they ever expect to realize again
